

Benefits for disabled children and their families

Benefits for disabled children and their families is a checklist giving guidance to advisers who are working with disabled children and their families. Child Poverty Action Group promotes action for the prevention and relief of poverty among children and families with children.

Being responsible for a child means you may be entitled to certain benefits and tax credits. And if your child has extra needs because of a disability, you may be entitled to more help. Some of this help depends on the needs of your child and some on your family's income. This leaflet is a checklist of the benefit and tax credit help you could get and also includes details of some other sorts of financial help.

The chart tells you at what age help first becomes available. So to check help available at a particular age, start from birth and read on until you reach that age. Help at younger ages continues to apply to older children unless otherwise stated.

Normally to be 'responsible' for a child for benefit purposes, the child must be living with you, but you do not have to be the child's parent. Where the checklist refers to a parent, it includes others responsible for a child.

This checklist only gives an indication of the help available. To qualify you have to meet all of the entitlement conditions, including any means test that might apply. At the end of the checklist there are details of who you can contact for further information and advice.

What help is available

From birth
Child benefit (CB)	A non- means- tested amount paid for each child you are responsible for if they live with you or you contribute financially towards their upkeep
Guardian's allowance	An additional amount paid to whoever receives CB if the child's parents are dead or surviving parent is missing or in prison or detained in hospital
Disability living allowance (DLA) care component	Can be paid from birth if child is terminally ill. This means that the child's death could reasonably be expected within 6 months. An award of DLA may mean entitlement to carer's allowance (see page 6)
Child tax credit (CTC)	Means- tested amounts paid whether in work or not for <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Having a family • Each child, with higher amount for child under one • Disability element if child registered blind or gets DLA • Severe disability element if child gets highest rate of DLA care component
Working tax credit (WTC)	Means -tested amounts paid because you (or your partner if you have one) work 16 hours or more a week and have a child or in some cases are on paid maternity leave. Can include help with childcare costs for lone parents and some couples
Housing benefit and council tax benefit (HB/CTB)	Means-tested help with rent or council tax. When you have a child you may get <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A family premium • Child personal allowance for each child, extra for a new baby • Disabled child premium if child registered blind or gets DLA • Enhanced disability premium if child gets highest rate DLA care component • Both premiums mean more HB/CTB if not already getting maximum or you may qualify for the first time

Income support (IS)

You may qualify for this means-tested help if you are

- A lone parent and responsible for a child or
- In the first 15 weeks after having a baby or
- You make a claim for DLA for the child, for up to 26 weeks or until the claim is decided. IS can continue if child gets middle or highest rate of DLA care component

Some other parents may also qualify (see 'Help with claiming and checking if you are entitled' below)
